Good Times Coming! To Those Who Live at Home! And Know The Only McNichol!

Far, far away, over the hills now roaming, Whether the weather turns out fair or murky, Somewhere, I know, eating and getting fat, Is my great big old Dominicker turkey. He doesn't know, poor chap, it's got to be; He doesn't fear the butcher-brutal sinner-And eats and eats and keeps on getting big. Just to adorn my next Thanksgiving dinner.

Great Gosh! suppose he knew and flew away! But that's too horrible-I'll waive the question. I'll keep on thinking of the coming time, And kind of hearten up my own digestion. There'll be mince pie and lots of other fixings; Cranberries smashed in sugar to a jelly; And oyster stuffing, pickles, quince preserves, And loads of other goodies, hot and smelly. (Whee!)

It doesn't do to think of ugly things-If folks could see the end they wouldn't work. Suppose that I myself, instead of riches, Had known I'd have to grub on as a clerk? You cannot squash me, anyhow, old friend, So long as I can capture decent raiment, Live with my own things, as I do this year, Due to McNichol's plan of weekly payments.

I've ceased to fret and wish for better days; I'm taking things just easy, as they come; I told the little girl I made my wife That she would have to scrape and save each crumb. "I don't mind, Billy, so we have a home," The dear girl said-a way to make me tickle-"I'll manage all the rest if you'll do that-Get pretty things to live with from McNichol!"

What better could a young fellow ask? I went on the double quick, and that's why I'm at home.

MRS. CRAIGIE APPEALS AGAINST THE CRITICS.

PUBLIC AND THE NEW YORK HERALD. London, Nov. 19.—(Copyright, 1994.)—Mrs. Craigle (John Oliver Hobbes) has appealed against the verdict of a London first-night audience.

When Miss Olga Nethersole produced her "Flute of Pan" the gallery "bcoed" and the rest of the house was unsympaher "Flute of Pan" the gallery "bcoed" and the rest of the house was unsympathetic, while the critics next morning, though resenting the "booing" as an encroachment on their preserves, could not find it in their hearts to praise the play. Mrs. Craigie considers her play a good one, and believes it will meet with a better reception from an audiente other than a characteristically first-night audience. The good offices of a newspaper with as keen an eye to advertisement as any playwright or actress going, has been bespoken to fill the Shaftesbury Theater one night next week with an audience which shall have none of the characteristics of a first-night gathering, and the judgment of that audience Mrs. Craigie promises to accept as final.

Miss Eleanor Robson reached the seventy-fifth performance of "Merely Mary Ann" at the Duke of York's Theater carly in the week.

The Duke and Duchess of Sutherland and the Duchess of Portismi were in a box one night, and the advance demands for stalls indicate that Miss Robson could play all through the winter if her other engagements did not preclude it.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Fruhman passed a few days in London before going to Berlin to hear Veczev's farswell concert, at which Herr Joachim will conduct.

Miss Lillian Blauvelt, who sails for America early in December, sang at a solree given by Princesu Henry of Battenburg, in Kensington Paiacs, on Thursday.

TRANSIT COMPANY APPEALS SUIT

Believed That Claim of No Assets Will Be Stopped and Actions Will Be Contested in Usual Way.

In view of its recent claim of no assets the action of the Transit Company yesterday in appealing the case of William Regan, who gained a judgment for $100 against the company for alleged physical injuries, is regarded as especially signifi-

Recently the Transit Company, in response to a claim of damages, announced that as the company had made over its assets to the Brown Bros. syndicate in settlement of a claim having priority over the claims of those instituting suits for damages, there was no money in the treasury to satisfy judgments against it.

As suits amounting to about $2,000,000 have been filed against the Transit Company, this claim caused considerable com-

Prominent attorneys expressed the opinion that the Transit Company could not evade its obligations in this manner and that ultimately all claimants who had secured judgments against the company could levy upor the assets held by the Brown Bros. syndicate, who are the principal stockholders of the United Railways Company, which now operates the Transit Company.

As by entering an appeal the Transit Company in the case of William Regan will have to give bond for 2200, or double the amount of the judgment, it is believed that the attorneys of the company have advised sgainst any attempt to evade the payments of judgments by a claim of no assets. Prominent attorneys expressed the opin no assets.

In future it is believed that the damage suits against the company will be contested as heretofore in the courts.

William Regan claims to have been damaged by a rail of the Transit Company striking him on the leg. "He sued for $500 damages.

ILLINOIS BUILDING

Special Committee Unable to Make Decision on Numerous Offers for Structure and Its Contents.

After working two days upon bids received for their building and its con-tents, members of a special committee appointed by the Illinois Commission are still unable to make a decision as to the sale of the property. Over_100 bids have been received by the commission

What adds to the complexity of the sit-What adds to the complexity of the situation is the fact that several bids were received for the building and its entire contents as a whole, while others bid on the building and contents separately. Besides, there were many other proposals to take various articles in the building. Accountants have been at work figuring on the method of disposing of the articles to the best advantage.

It is probable that the committee will be able to make a report by to-morrow or next day. The committee comprises John H. Miller, chairman; J. N. C. Shumway, D. M. Funk, H. M. Dunlap and J. J. Coleman.

SPECIAL ILLUMINATION FOR THANKSGIVING NIGHT.

The Exposition Company, through the Emergency Exploitation Committee, has arranged with Pain for an illumination of the Cascades and Lagoon on Thanksgiving night and on the night of the visit of the President, and these probably will be the Fresident, and these probably will be the last displays given during the World's Fair. Henry J. Pain is going to make them of unusual brilliancy.

A large attendance is expected on Thanksgiving Day and night, and also the day President Roosevelt visits the Fair. For that purpose the fireworks will be most gorgeous. Mr. Pain will put forth every effort to make the last display of the fireworks one to be long remembered by the visitors to the Fair.
